The Virginia War Memorial Foundation and Virginia Repertory Theatre to Co-Produce Four New One-Act Plays Written by Veterans

Richmond, VA – This March, The Virginia War Memorial Foundation will present four One-Act plays written by Virginia veterans, which will be professionally produced and performed with leadership from Virginia Repertory Theatre, under the program title, War in Pieces.

This co-production has grown out of the VWMF's free veterans writing program, "The Mighty Pen Project," which offers 12-week long classes throughout the year to encourage Virginia veterans to commit to paper their memories and reflections. Now in its tenth year, the MPP has helped veterans navigate their personal histories and form a living documentary of American military service. New York Times bestselling author David L. Robbins leads this program, and will direct all of the One-Acts.

"When the opportunity came to collaborate with Virginia Rep, we jumped at it. I've worked with Virginia Rep on mainstage productions and new works," Robbins said. "I'm confident that having them as co-producers will take War in Pieces to new levels, everything from on-stage production to even dreaming of expanding this veterans' playwrighting festival to a national audience." Robbins added, "The veteran writers in The Mighty Pen have put some powerful stuff on the page. These One-Acts have been adapted by four veterans from their true stories written for the class. Breathing life into them for the stage has yielded some powerful, memorable theater."

In 2017, Virginia Rep opened the World Premiere of David L. Robbins' The End of War. Set in embattled Berlin in the final days of WWII, the play examined the fears and atrocities of war from the perspective of a brilliant young cellist whose mother is harboring one of the city's last Jews, and two Red Army soldiers fighting their ways through the hellish Eastern front.

The plays are made possible by a generous grant from the Carpenter Foundation and will be presented in the VMI Alumni Hall at the Virginia War Memorial, which seats 90 people for these performances. There will be 7 performances, each of which includes all 4 plays together. Tickets are $25.00 per person (General Admission) and $20.00 for Military Veterans. Tickets can be purchased at virginiarep.org or by calling the Box Office at (804) 282-2620.
